The City of Cedar Hill, Texas

In its efforts to grow green, the City of Cedar Hill is saving some green.

The City recently added two all-electric vehicles to its fleet, with expectations of saving thousands of dollars in fuel costs over the life of the cars.

"Not only are we being sensitive to the bottom line, but we are being sensitive to the environment," said Assistant City Manager Melissa Stephens, who headed the study researching life-of-the-vehicle costs and carbon emissions to compare the value of the fully-electric vehicles to traditional gasoline-fueled cars.

Zero emissions

The City took delivery of two zero-emission Nissan Leafs in December, and the cars are used by the Utility Billing and

Parks and Recreation departments. Each cost approximately $30,000 after federal energy rebates. The city purchased four Blink charging stations for $2,500 each.

Stephens said the City will consider purchasing more electric vehicles as older, standard models need to be replaced.

It takes about eight hours to fully charge the Nissan Leaf, and a charge lasts about 100 miles. The cost is about .02 cents per mile, Stephens said.

Residents are encouraged to use the free charging stations at the Cedar Hill Government Center on Uptown Boulevard.

Two of the stations are on the south side of the building. City vehicles use two chargers behind the facility.

Leaf has more kick

Hybrids seem to be more popular among the public, Stephens said. However, after test driving both the hybrid Chevrolet Volt and the electric Nissan Leaf, she said she preferred the electric car.

"The Leaf drove far better and had a lot more kick than the Volt," she said.

City communications director Corky Brown said the biggest difference he noticed between the electric and fuel-powered cars is the sound.

"It was very quiet," Brown of the Leaf, adding that the car is equipped with a pedestrian warning to alert people who are

City election cancelled

The City election scheduled for May 12 has been cancelled by the City Council.

At the March 27 meeting, City Council members Cory Spillman and Chris Parvin were certified as unopposed candidates and will each serve an additional term.

At the same meeting, the City Council cancelled the election since both currently serving members were unopposed.

Just say Go

Saturday, April 28, from 10 am-2 pm, in the Walgreen's parking lot on Belt Line Road, the Cedar Hill Police Department, in cooperation with the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, will provide an opportunity for the public to surrender expired, unwanted, or unused pharmaceutical controlled substances and other medications for destruction.

The goal is to remove potentially dangerous substances from medicine cabinets.

No questions will be asked, nor will identification be required.

Liquid products, such as cough syrup, should remain in their tightly closed containers.

Intra-venous solutions and syringes will not be accepted due to potential hazards.

Illicit substances such as marijuana or methamphetamine are not a part of this collection effort.

At the conclusion of the event, a police officer will seal the drug collection boxes for destruction by DEA.

close by because they are so quiet.

Stephens said the City's electric cars are an addition to its overall Vision Plan to reduce fossil fuel emissions; reduce the total energy use as well as improve energy efficiency in government buildings.

The Government Center uses various forms of solar energy for power. This summer, a wind turbine will be constructed on the lawn that will assist in powering the building and serve as a demonstration for residents, Stephens said.

"There's a consistency the City's trying to get across," Brown said. "We're walking the walk — not just talking the talk. We're saying 'be green', and we're doing it."

Tree City USA

Hey, we're named after a tree, right?

Cedar Hill was recently named a "Tree City USA" community for the fourth year in a row by the national Arbor Day Foundation.

"We all benefit when communities like Cedar Hill place a high priority on planting and caring for trees, one of our nation's most beautiful resources," said John Rosenow, founder of the Arbor Day Foundation. "Trees provide many environmental, economic and social benefits. We applaud Cedar Hill's elected officials, volunteers and citizens for respecting the value of trees."

Take home a champion in May

May is "Take home a Champion" month at the Tri-City Animal Shelter & Adoption Center at 1150 E. Pleasant Run Road in Cedar Hill.

Saturdays in May will be special, with employees in sports-related gear.

Every family that adopts a pet in May will receive a $10 gift card from Petco.

When May adopters show proof of rabies vaccination, the shelter will microchip and register a pet for the discounted price of only $20.

May 5, bring the kids for free pony rides from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

May 19 will be a huge garage sale by the Friends of Tri-City, benefiting the shelter.

The shelter serves residents in and is funded by Cedar Hill, DeSoto and Duncanville.

Tri-City Animal Shelter & Adoption Center adopts out between 700-800 animals annually.

Historic Downtown Cedar Hill was full of many good things on March 24 as Walk The Light celebrated 'Where old meets new' on the streets, sidewalks and in the businesses downtown. Several thousand came to town to enjoy art, new and old friends and the great weather.

Don't grease your sewer

Over the past six months, Cedar Hill Public Works employees have responded to 146 sewer calls. The most common cause: cooking grease.

Even though it may be in a liquid form when poured down the drain, grease will re-solidify and stick to other solids already found in sewer lines. This can eventually block the flow, causing residents' and City sewer lines to backup. Sewer line overflows are costly to clean and detrimental to nearby bodies of water.

Small amounts of cooking grease can be wiped off of pans and dishes with paper towels and tossed in the trash.

Another option is to pour the grease into a container with a tight-fitting lid for storage or disposal in the trash.

The City now has a grease recycling bin available for residents and local businesses to use. Contact Josh McLellan in the Public Works Department at 972.291.5126 x2818 to schedule an appointment to drop off your grease at 1554 S. Clark Rd. (Near Dot Thomas Park).

Who answers your alarm?

- Get the fastest possible response.
- Find out about 3 months free at 972.230.5248.

A City ordinance requires yard sales and garage sales to be registered online at www.cedarhilltx.com or by calling 972.291.5100 x1090. Register online or call by Thursday to get on the list.

It's free and it will advertise your sale on the list published Fridays on the city website at www.cedarhilltx.com/garagesale.

Alarm permit = better service, no fines

Without an alarm permit it can cost you $100 every time your alarm goes off.

For only $50 you can get an alarm permit from the police department.

Details and the form to submit with payment are available at cedarhilltx.com/alarm.

The police station at 285 Uptown Blvd. is open 24 hours every day.

Firefighter's project shows this is a special community

Distinctive character shows up in many ways. In our community, often it is displayed in the way people step up to help others. Recently Cedar Hill firefighter/paramedic Chris Bullard saw a need and marshalled the resources to help Army veteran Mr. Wilcox.

They met while Bullard was responding to Wilcox's home. Bullard saw that a few interior changes would be a big benefit so he got permission from his superiors and help from his colleagues and local businesses to make those changes.

Now Mr. Wilcox enjoys greater freedom in his remodeled bathroom thanks to Chris, his friends in the CH Fire Fighter Assn., Cassity Jones and The Home Depot.

Free wireless internet connection is available at the Zula B. Wylie Public Library and at the Cedar Hill Recreation Center.
