CEDAR HILL

HIGHLIGHTS

State of the City message

Cedar Hill is about partnerships

The title of Mayor Rob Franke's talk was unsettling: "Cedar Hill, We Have A Problem."

But the 100 people who attended this year's State of the City luncheon, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, came away with a much more positive message.

Now in his fifth term as Mayor, Franke recalled days earlier in his time as an elected official when things weren't so rosy and were "downright challenging."

He referred back to the title of his talk when he spoke about the friction and discord as inevitable change became uncomfortable for some in Cedar Hill.

He said there were times they faced challenges and didn't know things would turn out.

But it was at those times, he said, when the people of Cedar Hill learned the valuable lessons of cooperation, partnership and celebrating what they have in common.

"We are blessed with incredible natural beauty that makes Cedar Hill unique in the metroplex" he said. "We have tried to be good stewards and at the same time grow our city," he added.

Franke said City leaders learned a lot during those difficult times and one of the lessons is that there will always be problems. How we handle them is what matters.

Today, he said, there are new signs of growth and the City needs to prepare for that by building up neighborhoods and training future City leaders.

Help ELF & Friends bring better holidays to Cedar Hill families

EMS, Law Enforcement, Firefighters or ELF & Friends is a non-profit organization operated by the Cedar Hill Fire & Police Associations. With local residents' assistance they help provide Christmas for about 200 children and senior citizens of Cedar Hill.

ELF Trees, containing tags with individual needs, were at the Cedar Hill Wal*Mart, Fire Station #211 (1212 W. Belt Line Rd.), Police Department (285 Uptown Blvd. #200) and Zula B. Wylie Library (225 Cedar St).

We can all help by visiting a tree, selecting a tag or two and purchasing items listed for the individuals or families on the tags.

These new, unwrapped items, with the ELF tags attached, should be brought to Fire Station #211 or the Police Department by Friday, Dec. 13.

Don't feed the clog

If you generate a lot of cooking oil or grease, don't pour it down the drain, it can cause clogs, expensive for you and for the City.

Recycle your cooking grease by bringing it, in a closed container, to the City Service Center at 1554 S. Clark Rd. between 7:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. weekdays. Check in at the office and they will assist you.

For smaller amounts, pour grease into a closeable container or wipe the warm, not hot, pan with paper towels and place them in the trash.

Putting food scraps into the trash instead of down the garbage disposal can also help prevent a holiday plumbing disaster.

Putting a face on government

Erica is a part of our growth

Erica Molett, Business Retention Manager for Cedar Hill's Economic Development Corporation, is happy to be a part of the economic growth where her kids are growing up. She has been in her position since earlier this year.

A resident for over a decade, she has experience in commercial banking, managing government funding projects, and consulting with businesses that have up to $20 million in revenue. She feels her work has prepared her for all the many hats she wears in her new role.

EDC is more than just attracting new businesses to town. About 80% of the economic growth in a city is the result of expansions and growth of existing businesses within the city.

"Here in EDC we do our best to support local business," Molett said. She works with existing and new businesses in Cedar Hill by listening to their needs and serving as a liaison when they require other city departments' involvement.

During her first few months, Molett has discovered that businesses have diverse needs and priorities. They range from concerns about the triple port taxes and the Panama Canal widening to questions about how to find skilled workers and ways to give back to the community. She fulfills these questions and concerns by making sure business leaders are informed about innovations in the industry and have data geared toward their special markets.

One way Molett hopes to expand the growth of business is through the Cedar Hill Businesses Forum, a series of events throughout the year to bring relevant information to Cedar Hill businesses.

Each event will discuss areas of interest to local businesses that are unique to their needs.

When Molett is not working with businesses, one might find her camping with her family at Cedar Hill State Park.

"I love Cedar Hill and all the natural amenities," said Molett. "

Cedar Hill has become an active destination for businesses; several projects are currently in the works. Combining a clean, safe community with easy access to transportation lifelines, Cedar Hill is an attractive business location.

People make it a community

Over 200 people attended the recent Inspiring Women's Health Luncheon to hear two doctors from the MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston share the latest information about women's cancer prevention, diagnosis and treatment. This was a community event underwritten by several Cedar Hill residents, hosted by Trinity Church and supported by local retail and other businesses.

Volunteers for the Inspiring Women's Health Luncheon included a City Council member, employees from the City, Trinity Church and Chamber of Commerce, all rallying around Dr. Peggy Wilson, in blue.

Nextdoor.com helps bring neighborhoods together

Nextdoor.com is the private social network for you and your neighborhood. It helps neighbors keep in touch. Check it out at Nextdoor.com. Your neighbors may already be there.

Sgt. Victor Vasquez and other members of the Cedar Hill Police Department PACT unit provide crime prevention tips to neighborhoods via Nextdoor. While neighbors can send information to the PACT unit, it is not an emergency service. Police officers cannot see messages between neighbors.

Many Cedar Hill neighborhoods are already using Nextdoor's secure online tool to get the word out about meetings, watch groups, finding trustworthy service providers and more.

Nextdoor.com now has a mobile app for smartphones so you can keep up with your neighborhood when you're on the go. Available at Apple and Android online app stores.

Each member must verify their address to join so you know you can trust who you are sharing with. The company has pledged it will never share your information with third parties. Read their commitment to privacy on their website Nextdoor.org.

Each website is password-protected and not accessible by search engines. Over 25,000 neighborhoods are enrolled in Nextdoor.

It's a way to share just what you want with neighbors and to involve them as a resource. While you may not want to share like you would with friends on Facebook, on Nextdoor you can ask a neighbor's opinion on the best dry cleaner nearby, or have him alert you if he noticed you left your garage door open. It's a great way to keep up with neighborhood meetings.

residents. Officials hope for a good turnout so they can collect first-hand information about what it will take to strengthen neighborhoods.

The November 19 meeting was held after the closing date for this newsletter.

The next meeting will be January 21 at Trinity Church, 1231 E. Pleasant Run.

The February meeting is set for the 18th, with the location to be determined.

The March 18 meeting will be held at Cedar Hill Church of Christ, 535 S. Clark Rd.

On April 15 the meeting will be held at the Ninth Grade Center, 1515 W. Belt Line Road.

The May 20 meeting location has not been confirmed.

Engaged neighbors help maintain Cedar Hill's small town feel, communicate needs and priorities more effectively, and become our future leaders. People's perception of the City starts at the neighborhood level.

At these meetings residents will have opportunities to speak directly with the Mayor and City Council members. The goals are to learn the concerns residents have about their neighborhoods and find out what the City and neighbors can do together to bring about positive changes.

There will be discussions about resources needed and best ways to communicate between the residents and the City.

Please check cedarhilltx.com/neighborhood for more information regarding dates and locations of these town hall meetings.
