LIBRARY IN A PARK PROJECT RECEIVES BEAUTIFY TEXAS AWARD

Keep Texas Beautiful recently announced Cedar Hill's Library in a Park as a winner of the 2024 Outstanding Project Award for its work to preserve and enhance Texas's environment and make the community stronger.

The Beautify Texas Awards recognize the efforts of those working to enhance their community and protect the Lone Star State. These awards range in honoring extraordinary volunteers, professionals, youth, educators, businesses, local/civic governments, organizations, and specific projects and programs.

"We are proud to honor and recognize Texans who are making a difference in our state," says Suzanne Kho, Executive Director of Keep Texas Beautiful. "Their actions do more than protect the environment; they inspire community members to get involved and help us keep Texas beautiful."

Cedar Hill's Library In A Park project exemplifies community collaboration and environmental stewardship. This innovative initiative provides a state-of-the-art public library integrated seamlessly with its natural surroundings, enhancing Cedar Hill's environmental beauty while promoting education and community engagement.

The Traphene Hickman Library is surrounded by the city's new Signature Park featuring lush green spaces and nature trails. The city planted 231 new trees and 14,342 native plants during park development, contributing significantly to local biodiversity and ecosystem health. The City's commitment to green space is also evident in an allocated plot of land across from the Library In A Park with a full treescape. The exclusive use of plants native to the region ensures the park remains in harmony with the city's environment. The entire project was designed to LEED standards and was built with sustainability at the forefront of all efforts.

TRI-CITY TALES: BAR-B DREAMHOUSE

on Oriole Street. When animal control officers picked her up, they noticed how remarkably congenial she was. Not only did she let everyone handle her without objection, she seemed to crave human companionship. Like a dog. With feathers.

She remained in a cage in the hallway at the animal shelter for more than week while staff tried to locate her owners. No one came to claim her. They couldn't determine why she had -- forgive us for this one-- flown the coop. As it happened, her stay at the shelter overlapped with the Friends of Tri-City's annual Cats, Coffee, Dogs and Donuts event. Attendees started lining up for a spring photo op with the resident chicken. (Including Cedar Hill council member Chad McCurdy.)

When it became clear that her owner would not be found, shelter director Tammy Miller took the chicken home. Her husband jokingly named her Barbeque Chicken, which Miller shortened to Bar-B because the only way she would ever make it to the dinner table was with her own chair, plate and napkin.

BarB gradually settled into her new digs, a roomy outdoor enclosure complete with a heated foot warmer on her perch.

Not that she's there much. During the day, BarbB scampers in and out of the dog door, sometimes hanging out in the barn, other times coming in to sit with the family and watch television. She rides on top of the dog, and bosses the cats. When Miller arrives home from work, BarB runs out to greet her.

"We have to get onto her so she doesn't get in a car," Miller says. She's so friendly with strangers, Miller worries that she is going to jump into an Amazon delivery van one day and ride off. That said, Miller cautions that BarbB's easy-going nature is highly unusual. Every year, in the months after Easter, the shelter takes in the chicks and bunnies that looked so adorable in Easter baskets, but grew into adult animals that need food and clean cages. (Stuffed animals are just as cute, and much easier to care for.)
