

CEDAR HILL HIGHLIGHTS

2025 COMMUNITY SURVEY RESULTS ARE IN

In 2025, the City of Cedar Hill commissioned ETC Institute to conduct a community survey as a follow-up to the 2022 survey. The purpose of the survey was to measure resident satisfaction with City services and to collect feedback on community priorities. Results were presented to the City Council during their meeting on March 25, 2025.

The findings reveal that Cedar Hill residents have a positive perception of their city. 79% of respondents reported satisfaction with Cedar Hill as a place to live. In 54 of the 58 areas assessed, satisfaction levels were at or above the national average. Notably, satisfaction with customer service and communication to the public was rated 33% higher than the U.S. average.

Top community priorities identified by residents include improving traffic flow and congestion management, maintaining streets, buildings, and facilities, and enforcing city codes and ordinances.

The survey was administered through both mail and online methods to a random sample of 401 households. With a margin of error of $\pm 4.9\%$ at a 95% confidence level, the data is statistically valid and includes comparisons with cities throughout Texas and the United States.

This survey builds upon the baseline established by the 2016 community survey and continues to guide City Council and management in setting priorities for Cedar Hill's future.

TRI-CITY TALES: HOOKED ON HELP

Augustine Serna works for the Cedar Hill Parks and Recreation Department, where he helps keep the city's public grounds trimmed and tidy. One day in April, while cutting brush around the pond at Bradford Park, he noticed a red-eared slider turtle sunning itself at the water's edge. As Serna moved closer, he realized the turtle was in distress, with a fishhook caught in its mouth.

Serna has a soft spot for turtles. He's not sure why, but maybe it stems from growing up watching Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, as he's loved them since he was a kid. Today, he has two pet turtles named Pumba and Bob. During his time working for the city, he's become a one-man turtle rescue team, once even saving a turtle he found dumped in a city trash can. The turtle at the pond wasn't the first he had seen with a hook, but this one was different. The hook was lodged so deeply, with such a large barb, that Serna couldn't remove it without risking further injury to the animal.

He gently picked up the frightened turtle, placed it in the front seat of his truck, and drove to Tri-City Animal Shelter. When he arrived, he walked up to the front desk and said, "This is going to be one of the weirdest questions you get today. Can you help a turtle?"

That was the day a shelter staff member learned all about turtle medicine. At first, the staff tried to remove the hook as Serna had, but the turtle kept pulling its head into its shell. They guessed it was from the pain. One staff member noted, "Turtles don't really have the greatest facial expressions." Eventually, they contacted a veterinarian who guided them through the steps to safely anesthetize the turtle so they could remove the hook.

The staff named him Bradford, after the park where he was found. Following a successful procedure, Bradford spent the night at the shelter on a heating pad to keep his body temperature stable. The next day, he got a ride back to his pond.

Serna is happy to know the little guy is okay, and proud that he and the shelter staff got to be turtle superheroes.

CELEBRATING THE FIRST YEAR OF THE COLLEGIATE PREP CHANGEMAKERS PROGRAM

As the inaugural year of the Collegiate Prep Changemakers Program comes to a close, we proudly recognize the impact made by Cedar Hill's youngest civic leaders. This year, 100 PreK-5th grade scholars from Collegiate Prep Elementary completed 10 community service projects, contributing an impressive 820 hours of service across our city. Their efforts included park cleanups, holiday drives, and meaningful participation in events like the city's Arbor Day celebration.

This student-led program, created by the Cedar Hill Collegiate Prep Elementary PTA, embodies the spirit of leadership through service and reflects the strong partnership between our schools and local government. We commend these young Changemakers for their dedication and thank the City of Cedar Hill for supporting their growth as future community leaders.

To follow their journey, visit <https://sites.google.com/chcppta.org/home> or find "Collegiate Prep Changemakers" on LinkedIn.
